FIELD DAY FOR "GOOD THINGS" AT AQUEDUCT TO-DAY

Oraculum, Winner of the First Event, Unplayed, but Others Gave the Bookmakers a Severe Jolt.

(Special to The Evening World)

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Nov. 12.—The long shots had a field day to-day. Oraculum, at 10 to 1, started the ball rolling, then came Alamansor at 15 to 1, Whidden at 10 to 1, Purslane at 12 to 1 and Quinn Brady at 7 to 1.

The Roslyn Handicap was the biggest betting event of the day. Baby Wolf and McCarter were scratched, and Don Enrique and Tiling were added. This made up a field of nine. Of these five were tips. Led of tamedon was played down two points. Blue Book went back five and Gold Lady one. The biggest play was on Tiling. The money came in on him in bunches, and from the high price of 12 to 1 his price was forced down by weight of money to 4 to 1 at post time. If he had won the book would have been stung to the tune of $5,000. Kentucky Beau, with Miller up, did the early pace-making, followed by Don Enrique and Purslane. In the stretch, however, Purslane had the speed and outlasted Don Enrique for the first money. Kentucky Beau quit at the turn and E. Duigan brought Killdeer in to get third money in front of Lad of Langdon.

Big Plunge Goes Wrong.

One of the biggest plunges of the meeting failed in the opening event. When the horses were posted there was a wild scramble to get aboard Quagmire, with the result that the horse was thrown, and that a 10 to 1 was considered a good price at post time. Nothing else, with the exception of Robin Hood, was played. Quagmire did his best but only got third. He didn't, however, have the best of the race. He was out of the race and lasted just long enough to beat out Robin Hood. The pig won, and there was comparatively little play on the winner.

Alamansor a Good Thing.

Alamansor was the goods to-day. Eddie McDonald and all the wise boys who got the good intelligence information played him, his price going from 15 down to 4 to 1. He won in the drive through the stretch. Dupe outdug Kara right at the end. Kara was the favorite in the betting. Ago was third. Dupe and Bannell fell early. Sam Fudge was backed from 5 down to 5 to 1. Ash was away next to last and never could get into the race.

Miller Lands Long Shot.

Whidden, a specially prepared good thing, was an easy winner in the third. Richmond Duke made all the early pace until after the third. When Miller sent Whidden to the front and kept him there to the end. Duke of Bridge did not have foot enough to catch Whidden. Oraculum, Sam Fudge and Ash were backed from 5 down to 5 to 1. Ash was away next to last and never could get into the race.

Another Long One Wins.

Quinn Brady, a 10 to 1 shot, won the fifth, a head in front of St. Valentine, with Kitter third. They all finished in a bunch. Attention was the favorite in the race, was played by the crowd, which at this stage of the season eagerly grabs at anything in the way of tips.

SWAM FOR GIANT FLUNG OVERBOARD BY BIG DERRICK

Ironworker Rescued Companion
Who Was Hit by 500-
Pound Weight.

Edward Attrill, an ironworker, was standing on the abutment of the new City Island bridge that is being built across Pelham Bay this afternoon when a bucket of cement swung toward him on the boom of a derrick. A five hundred-pound weight was suspended from the cable above the bucket to balance it.

A rigger directing the derrick engineer called out to warn Attrill and he dodged to one side. He failed to see that the cable suspending the weight had suddenly uncoiled and sent it flaring in a wide circle. It struck him a glancing blow on the shoulder and head and hurled him, headlong, into the water.

A few feet away De Koven, another ironworker, saw what had happened and stripped off his coat. When out of sight De Koven waited to see if rise, thirty feet downstream, and made a long feinting dive. He came up within half a dozen feet of the senseless man and got him by the collar as he was sinking again.

200 pounds and De Koven had a desperate fight to get him up and tow him to shore. He fainted from exhaustion when he had accomplished the task.

While the two were in the water a fireman telephoned to the Fordham Hospital, seven miles away, for an ambulance. One came at breakneck speed in charge of Dr. Placot. He found Attrill unconscious and sinking rapidly. There was a fracture at the base of the skull and many contusions.

In the hope that an operation might save him, the ambulance surgeon bade the driver send the horse home at a gallop, and Attrill was still alive when they reached the hospital.

After an operation had been performed it was said that the man had a fighting chance of recovery. He is twenty-nine years old and lives on Fordham avenue, City Island.

SALOON MURDER CALLS RESERVES TO HANDLE MOB

BIG REVOLVERS FLASH.

Gang in Place Where Tragedy
Occurs Flee With Drawn Weapons.

During a fight, in which a number of men figured, in a saloon at the north-west corner of Twenty-eighth street and Tenth avenue, late this afternoon, a shot was fired, and James Cuff, of No. 44 West Thirty-seventh street, dropped dead with a bullet through his heart.

The entire assemblage of men in the saloon, several of whom are said to have drawn revolvers, made a rush for the doors.

The sound of the shot had in the meantime aroused the neighborhood, which is thickly populated with negroes and Italians. Three or four men fleeing from the spot were pursued by crowds and in a short time the whole section was seething with excitement.

The first policeman on the scene sent in a call for reserves from the West Twentieth street precinct, and when the officers arrived they had to fight their way to the saloon. They arrested Frank Brophy, of No. 42 West Twenty-ninth street, and half a dozen other men, who are said to have been involved in the fight in which the murder was committed. Witnesses told the police that man who did the shooting got away, although he was chased for two blocks by a mob.

Cuff was twenty-six years old. He was employed in the Department of Parks.

Polack, Who Guided Rudderless
Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Safely to Port, Gets Crown Order.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Emperor William has conferred the crown Order of the Third Class on Capt. Polack, for bringing the North German Lloyd line steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse safely to Berlin through heavy seas after the big liner had lost her rudder.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, after leaving New York Oct. 22, under command of the Newfoundland Banks Oct. 23, was driven off her course by a heavy sea. Polack, who remained almost all the time on the bridge and did not sleep, was decorated by the emperor.

her propellers, reached the English Channel, the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse made Plymouth safely Oct. 29. Cherbourg, the steamer, and Bremen Oct. 30 without assistance.

"NEXT FRIENDS" MUST PAY COSTS OF EDDY SUIT.

But Estate of Christian Science
Leader Ordered to Settle Master's Fees of $10,000.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 12.—The "next friends" of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, who last summer attempted to secure an accounting of her property, must pay the costs of litigation, and were so notified to-day by Judge Robert N. Chamberlin, of the Superior Court.

Masters fees aggregating $10,000, however, must be paid by the trustees of Mrs. Eddy's estate.

POPE WITH ARCHBISHOP ON VANDERBILT MARRIAGE.

ROME, Nov. 12.—The Vatican authorities are following with interest the attitude taken by Archbishop Farley, of New York, regarding the proposed celebration of the marriage of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and Count Lasalo Stachey. Although particulars are lacking, the Holy See approves every action of the Archbishop tending to emphasize the authority of the church and restore the rigidity of her rules.

Archbishop Farley's stand is that the first marriage ceremony must be that of the Catholic Church.

DIED LAUGHING AS BOYS FOUGHT TO REGAIN COIN

Mirth Caused Congestion of Blood Around the Heart of Aged Cornelius Keenan.

Mirth over the efforts of a squad of youngsters to recover a bright new quarter dollar which he had tossed into the fountain basin in Madison Square Park to-day caused the death of old Cornelius Keenan.

His convulsed laughter produced a congestion of blood around the heart. Then the old man reeled and fell backward, his head striking upon one of the iron spikes of the railing surrounding the basin.

When the police came and the body of the aged man was conveyed to the station-house the youngsters, who had ceased their efforts at recovering the coin and assembled solemnly around the prostrate body, renewed their fishing operations, apparently thoughtless of the tragic scene.

Keenan, who was eighty-three years old, was a Madison Square Park character. It was his daily custom to visit the park and feed the birds and the few squirrels which still rendezvous there, and the squirrels and birds seemed to know the old man. His tall, slim figure, his kindly face adorned with a long white goatee, with a silver-handled cane, formed a picture with which residents in the neighborhood and every policeman became familiar.

To-day the old man went to the park. He doled out his contribution to the birds and the squirrels. He sat near the fountain and as several schoolboys approached displayed the shining quarter and tossed it into the water-filled basin, inviting the lads with a flourish of the ancient cane and by command of voice to "get it now, boys. The winner may get many more later in life."

He lived with his son, Michael, who is blind and the business at No. 32-32 Sixth avenue. Old Mr. Keenan came from Ireland when a mere boy and became successful in business in this country.

BOY MANGLED UNDER CAR RUN BY HIS UNCLE

Street Throng Sees Pupil Hurrying to School Killed by Trolley.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Alexander Cowan, nine years old, while hurrying to school on Court street to-day, was run over by a Union trolley car almost opposite the court-house and instantly killed. The boy's legs were severed and the wheels almost cut his body in two.

A number of persons, among whom were a few judges and several court attaches, saw the little victim mangled.

The conductor of the car was Charles Cowan, an uncle of the boy, and he did not even know that his car had killed his nephew until half an hour later, when the little fellow was identified by a school chum.

IMPORTS OF GOLD ALMOST $60,000,000

The movement of gold from the vaults of European banks to the United States, which has been in progress for several weeks, in which the unprecedented total of nearly $60,000,000 has been engaged abroad for import, still continues.

The total, which passed the $50,000,000 mark yesterday, was increased to-day when the United States Bank of Chicago, completed negotiations for the importation of $10,000,000. This engagement makes the total to date $60,000,000. Later in the day Heidelberg, Ickelheimer & Co. engaged another $10,000,000 in gold and the National City Bank of Chicago $200,000, bringing the total to $80,200,000.

CHILD AFFINITY AND WIFE DECLARE LOVE IN COURT

Seventeen-Year-Old Honora
Callahan Proclaims Loyalty to Alleged Abductor.

Two widely divergent types of womanhood professed loving love for David Bauer, a well-set-up young man, in Harlem Police Court to-day. Bauer was arraigned on a charge of abducting seventeen-year-old Honora Callahan, of No. 25 Manhattan avenue. A very pretty girl, who was also a prisoner, charged by her mother, Amelia, with being incorrigible.

The Callahan girl openly expressed her love for Bauer, and cast adoring glances at him from across the room. Out in the seats among the spectators an elderly but well-preserved woman also wept silently during the proceedings. She said she was Bauer's wife, and while she would not give her age, she admitted that she was more than twice as old as her husband. He is twenty-one.

Girl Was Infatuated.

Honora Callahan met Bauer last July and became infatuated with him. She began running away from home at times. Mrs. Callahan tried in vain to discover the cause of the change in her daughter, who had hitherto been a most obedient child, until last Friday, when she was leaving in the house.

Mrs. Callahan said nothing about finding the letter, but she was hiding at the trying place Saturday night, with Policeman Sheehan. Bauer was arrested, but Honora disappeared.

In court Bauer frankly admitted his love for the girl. He asserted that it was his intention to get a divorce and marry her. At this his aged wife began to sob.

Two Proclaim Love.

"I tried to treat him right," she said. "I do love him and I will not give him up."

"I love David," said the Callahan girl vehemently. "I love to look into his eyes. I cannot control myself when I see him. I love him so. I will wait for him if he sends him to prison; if it takes fifteen years. We will be married and be happy, in spite of the police and everybody."

Bauer was held in $4,000 bail for examination on the abduction charge. The girl was sent to the House of Detention at the request of the Children's Society, which will take charge of the prosecution.

PASSES DIVIDEND.

Directors of the Parrot Silver and Copper Company, one of the subsidiary companies of the Amalgamated Copper Company, to-day voted not to declare the usual quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share. The directors announced that the omission of the dividend was due to curtailment in production, depression in the copper industry and to the fact that the ore treated are of a lower grade than formerly.

CROWD CHASES DUCHESS AFTER VISIT TO TOMBS

No Extra Police Protection Provided, borough and Mrs. Mackay.

VISITORS WELL IMPRESSED
BY CONDITIONS IN PRISON.

The Duchess Says This Is Far Ahead of What
She Has Seen in England—Mrs. Mackay to Head a Reform Movement Here.

The Duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Clarence Mackay spent more than an hour this afternoon in a close inspection of the Tombs and a visit to the Criminal Courts Building. As they started uptown they encountered a great crowd that blocked the way to their auto at the Criminal Courts Building door on the Lafayette street side.

It was an unruly, boisterous gathering. Men, women and boys fought with each other to get close to the two visitors. It was all a squad of newspaper reporters and Col. George Harvey, who acted as escort to the Duchess and Mrs. Mackay, could do to clear a way for them across the sidewalk.

The Duchess of Marlborough is deeply interested in prison reform work in England. Mrs. Mackay is similarly interested in this country. Their trip to the Tombs was not inspired by trifling curiosity.

The two distinguished visitors reached the Tombs in a cab from the Lawyers' Club where they had luncheon with Col. Harvey. They were met at the door of the big stone pile by Commissioner of Corrections Cogges, the handsomest of the city's department heads, and Warden Flynn.

Mrs. Mackay Objected.

A delegation of newspaper reporters was in waiting. They requested permission to accompany the visitors through the prison. The Duchess of Marlborough was willing, but Mrs. Mackay was not, and she, being the Christopher Columbus of the expedition, so to speak, prevailed.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding a reporter did accompany the party. He was an intrepid reporter and Mrs. Mackay accompanied to his eloquence. The Duchess explained that in her work in England she visited many prisons. Her first observation concerned the immaculate cleanliness of the Tombs. She said it was a surprising condition in comparison with what she had seen on the other side.

Warden Flynn conducted the visitors through each tier on the men's side and they inspected several cells. The Duchess said that the sanitary arrangements compelled her admiration. She had no idea of such completeness in a prison in that respect.

In passing from the men's side to the women's side the visitors crossed the yard. Harry Thaw, collarless, with his sleeves rolled up, was tossing the medicine ball with three Italians. The Duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Mackay stopped a moment and watched the game. Thaw kept his face averted.

The inspection of the women's side was quite thorough and was under the guidance of Matron O'Brien. The party passed through a corridor allotted to the women prisoners for lounging and exercise. There were forty women in this corridor. Most of them were reading.

Spoke to the Prisoners.

They all seemed to know who the visitors were. The Duchess stopped and spoke to several of the unfortunate. She said she was pleased to see that so many were reading magazines and books. "Are you well cared for?" she asked a pretty girl serving a ten-day sentence for disorderly conduct.

When the women's hospital was reached Mrs. Mackay said she had had been through the prison before with Makistrate Barlow and was not particularly interested.

The Duchess of Marlborough was in a great deal of the best of health, and she was particularly interested in the lights, and showed knowledge of hospital work.

Thaw Still in the Yard.

On the return trip to the men's side Harry Thaw was still playing with the medicine ball. The visitors did not glance in his direction.

The last part of the prison inspection was a tour of the women's side. The Duchess and Mrs. Mackay were kept and boys are held pending their removal to reformatories. The Duchess asked many questions here, and said she would like to cross the Bridge of Sighs.

The Duchess walked across that bridge, passing through the cells and into the Court of General Sessions. Part of the tour was a visit to the Court of Sessions, where Judge John E. Kane was sitting at the trial of a thief. Some benches while the procedure of the criminal courts was explained.

Got Good Impression.

"I was very happily impressed with the condition of the Tombs," said the Duchess to an Evening World reporter. "The comparison between this and English prisons, I have visited is most marked. I am particularly impressed with the cleanliness and the sanitary arrangements."

The Duchess said that in English prisons the prisoners are not allowed to converse and read and write as they are in the Tombs. She appeared to be deeply interested and to some extent moved by what she had seen.

$20,000 IN CASH STOLEN FROM PAYMASTER'S WAGON.

TRINIDAD, Col., Nov. 12.—The sum of $20,000, belonging to the American Smelting and Refining Company, which was to be used to pay employees, was stolen near Trinidad last night. The money was taken from a buggy which was being driven by the paymaster and another man. No arrests have been made, but two men are under suspicion.
